BOISE - IDAHO

FOREWORD

THE Indians are gone from the Boise valley. No longer do their cries ring out through the night nor their fires glimmer along the river banks. But their war cry is echoed in the voices of the Boise high school Brave and his squaw; their valor is displayed on fields of athletic combat; their talent is carried on in music, art and literature; and their spirit lives in the hearts of 1500 students. In 1938 the Boise Brave added many scalps to his belt, on the gridiron he showed himself supreme and the state basketball championship was gained by his prowess. His life was not all battles; he also spent much time in study for the future. He gave himself time for social affairs so that he reached the end of the year a better all-round individual. On these pages you will find the record of his activities . . . some in the sign language of pictures, some in the language of writing which the modern Indian has learned.

Geometry is such a bore . . .

Student Council . . .

New curtains for the gym and high school auditorium and cement for the new tennis courts were purchased as part of the work of the student council during the past year.

Thus the student council conquered many obstacles that arose during the year under the able supervision of Donald Galbreaith president and his council, including Roberta Rodgers vice president, Dorothy Coon secretary, Dick Armstrong treasurer and George Lenfest corresponding secretary. From the classes came representatives, among whom were Jack Dunaway and Betty McDonald sophomores, Judy Hallstrom and Chris Alexander juniors and Bob Day and Wayne Peterson seniors.

The annual custom of decorating a huge Christmas tree in the main hall was again managed by the council, helping to carry out the yuletide spirit of the students.

Acting as the executive group of the school government, this group met and solved many problems of students and the student-body with the assistance of Miss Margaret Sinclair, who at mid-year took over Miss Karen Kieldsen's duties as advisor of the council.

Girls' Club . . .

Boise high school girls carried on a heavy schedule of work this year which included a scholarship assembly, a co-ed ball, and several senior activities. Elizabeth Yriondo successfully headed the cabinet of twelve girls with the help of Miss Clara Otness, dean of girls. Helen Marr Archibald was vice president, Dorothy Coon secretary and Bonnie Jean Jennings treasurer.

For one week all Boise high studes went Harlem, with canes and derbies, sold in the dean's office just before the final basketball game with Nampa.

The co-ed ball, co-chairmaned by Ruth Ann Cahoon and Lois Peterson, carried the theme, "Dear Diary." Sophomores won the prize for the best stunt with an automobile act.

Even though there were no freshmen, the "big sister" movement was carried on for new girls in high school with Lucille Laubaugh as head. There was also a "big sister" tea where the new girls were helped to get acquainted.

Sophomore officers Betty Matthews, Harriette Driscoll, Claire Bracken and Maryanne Kennedy had charge of candy selling at the state basketball tournament. Elinore Finch headed the annual scholarship assembly. Honor girls and the most popular boy were elected.

Boys' Federation . . .

As the representatives of all the boys of Boise high school, the Boys' federation has done much to add to school life.

Such customs as giving baskets on Thanksgiving and Christmas were again carried out by this group, headed by Charles Lenfest president, Vern McGowan vice president, Chris Alexander secretary and Wayne E. Peterson treasurer.

The federation put on its annual "rally" before the Nampa-Boise football game. The formal Christmas dance, with its beautiful decorations, carried out the yuletide theme.

Every boy in Boise high school is a member of the federation, while each class chooses its own representatives to meet in a council; each to discuss the problems and needs of all the boys and to promote good feeling among the classes.

Through the efforts of the federation much interest has been shown in school activities and it made many progressive steps toward bettering the school.

This organization is one of the main factors in the administration of Boise high's student body and contributes much to its pep and good sportsmanship, as well as helping boys to accustom themselves to their three years of senior high school life.

Administration . . .

Boise high school life has moved in the same well-ordered and regulated paths this year as in past years. Again, the credit must go to the school administration: Zed L. Foy principal, Seth T. Freer dean of boys, and Miss Clara Otness dean of girls.

Students have an initiative type of government, as their activities are governed by the efforts they expend; but a great deal of the planning passes through the hands of these three.

Mr. Foy heads the faculty group. It is his duty to make arrangements for assemblies during school hours and to schedule school affairs for the evening.

The task of visiting incoming students and explaining the procedures of enrollment was lightened considerably this year by absence of a freshman class, due to the new junior high.

Mr. Freer's ready wit aided him constantly in his supervision of a study hall, detention and noon study groups . . . all of which were his special duties. He acted in an advisory capacity to boys wishing employment and to those whose work was unsatisfactory, and had charge of delinquents.

Miss Otness, in the position of dean of girls, served as adviser to the Girls' club, an organization made up of all the girls in the school. She was also chairman of the faculty social committee. Orderlies, another group of great service to the school, were also under her direction.

Office . . .

What if you want to enroll, deposit money into the student body fund, put a notice in the daily bulletin, make an appointment with the principal, or send a message to a student in room 337? Or take out a handful of tickets to sell for the next Dramatic club play?

These are only a few of the multitudes of details that somebody in a large high school has to be responsible for. Mrs. Alice Smith, registrar, has been taking care of enrollments for so long that she can do it almost automatically. She knows more about each individual's scholastic record than any dozen other persons put together.

Miss Hazel Hotchkiss receives deposits to student body funds, and does the mimeographing—to mention only a few of her duties. Miss Ruth Herbert, '37, is the efficient infant of the office force. And as to delivering messages, there are girls known as orderlies who take care of endless errands and other small but necessary jobs.

Across the hall from the main office, Mr. J. E. Six' commanding figure stands guard over the financial affairs of the student body.

If you know your business, these office workers are pleasant and helpful. They are the oil that makes the machinery of school life run smoothly.

Faculty . . .

What if Boise high should wake up some morning with a completely new set of teachers, all the way from benign, veteran Mr. John Sawyer down to the petite Misses Dorothy Lenfest and Grace Johnston? It can't happen, of course. But maybe the thought brings out more vividly the part the faculty plays in school life. Most of these teachers have been here much longer than any student. They have their varied interests but all are interested in helping students. They have a lot to do with making school life what it is . . . and it is, after all, a happy life.

Faculty . . .

Most Boise high school teachers have been here a number of years. Yet each year there are changes. During the past year two teachers departed in the middle of the year. Mr. Donald Foltz, vocal music instructor, was called to a fine position in Detroit. Miss Karen Kieldsen went away after Christmas. Mr. Howard Deye, instrumental music teacher, resigned last summer to accept a position at Ellensburg, Washington. Captain Eugene R. Guild, R.O.T.C. instructor, was transferred. The school extends to these teachers the best of wishes. Their work will be remembered many long years.

SENIORS

Virginia Rhea, secretary
Vern McGowan, president
Valerie Delana, treasurer
Bill Anderson, vice president

Seniors . . .

The largest class ever to graduate from Boise high school are now preparing to walk across the stage as students for the last time. Four busy and happy years have sped by since they entered the school as inexperienced freshmen. During those years the class of 1938 made a place for itself in school activities.

Vern McGowan president, Bill Anderson vice president, Virginia Rhea secretary, and Valerie Delana treasurer led the class in its final year at Boise high.

On the athletic field, in the classroom, on the stage, in the pressroom and in the orchestra pit class members displayed their ability.

Graduating seniors were largely responsible for bringing the state basketball championship cup to Boise for the first time in 14 years, and they led the football team to top rank in the Big Ten championship race.

Donald Galbreaith was chosen student body president. Two other student offices fell to seniors, the vice presidency to Roberta Rodgers and the secretaryship to Dorothy Coon. Elizabeth Yriondo was president of the Girls' club, Charles Lenfest headed the Boys' federation and Mildred McDowell controlled activities of the G.A.A. Lucille Laubaugh led the "big sisters." Elizabeth Bracken and Dick Mathison served as editors of the High Lights. Bill Hart edited the Courier. Ted McCutcheon was R.O.T.C. major.

Though the vacancies will be filled, many a senior will be sorely missed when school begins next fall. Meanwhile, to college, to work, to far-off places scatter the class of '38 seeking new fields to conquer.

CLASSES

Juniors . . .

The class of '39 came back to Boise high whooping and yelling to show the true spirit that they had and ready to carry on for their last two years here.

To lead them they chose Lois Malnati president, Chris Alexander vice president, Bernice Perry secretary and Charles Crowe treasurer. On the student council Judith Hallstrom and Chris Alexander shone as their representatives. Class advisors were Miss Barnes and Mr. Chindgren.

The first honor of the year was the selection of Junior Peterson as yell king. Juniors were well represented on the football team and also in basketball and track. In debate, dramatics, the minor sports and other activities, they proved their ability to carry on traditions.

On the Courier and High Lights the juniors were represented by Lois Hulser, managing editor of the High Lights the first semester; and Bernice Heisner, also managing editor the second semester, and a great many more. Jack Perkins was appointed editor of next year's Courier.

Twelve of the 33 honor girls were juniors and one of the ten most popular boys was also in this class.

At the Junior-Senior Prom the seniors were royally entertained in the new gym, which was transformed into a little bit of Holland. Co-chairman of this affair were Dick Armstrong and Lois Malnati.

And so the juniors leave these halls to return next year to get a little more knowledge and a great deal more sophistication as seniors.

Charles Crowe, treasurer

Bernice Perry, secretary

Sophomores . . .

In all the activities of Boise high school one could always find several sophomores. Outstanding among this group were their officers: Joe Uberuaga president, Bill Sproat vice president, Betty Matthews secretary, and Jean Meredith treasurer. Representatives to the student council were Betty Jane McDonald and Jack Dunaway.

After much pondering the girls chose Betty Mathews as their leader with Harriette Driscoll her assistant. Claire Bracken was named Girls' club secretary and Maryanne Kennedy treasurer.

At the annual co-ed ball the sophomore girls walked away with the first prize with their stunt.

Four sophomore boys had the honor of being elected among the ten most popular boys of Boise high school. They were Werner Stern, George Miller, Angie Madarieta and Joe Uberuaga.

In sports the sophomores were represented on every field. In football, basketball, track and tennis they received their share of the glory that came to the Boise Braves.

This class lived up to the standards of Boise high and has aided in the desire to uphold its traditions. When they first started as freshmen they were greeted by a school that was growing and needed their help. Now at the end of their second year they have contributed much to the spirit of Boise high school.

There is no stopping these sophomores. Juniors next year and if the seniors aren't snappy they will have their toes trampled on all year long by this up and coming sophomore class.

Final curtain call for operetta "Pinafore"

Entire "Jollies" cast on stage

Jollies, Pinafore, Music Concerts . . .

The sailors' chant, "We Sail the Ocean Blue," opened the music season November 5 when "H.M.S. Pinafore," the Gilbert and Sullivan enjoyable light opera, was presented under the direction of Donald Foltz. Emily Foster, Delbert Nord, Loren Bush, Catherine Cunningham, Bill Rogers and Bill Bates had leading roles.

"The Jollies," February 3, was next in line with its dazzling array of new talent. This show was a new idea, introduced by Kenneth Hartzler, new music instructor. Home economics, printing, art and many departments cooperated to make these productions successful.

Then came the spring concerts: vocal solo contest April 5, symphony orchestra April 20, district festival April 22 and 23, glee club concert April 29, a concert by the senior band May 6, and the a cappella May 13.

The climax to the musical season came when the school musical department cooperated with the other musical organizations to present Music week.

The symphony orchestra prepares for its concert

Senior Band . . .

Flashy red and white uniforms prance down Public School field to throbbing rhythm of drums, trumpets and bell lyres.

It's the Boise-Nampa football game and the 80-piece band is the central focus on the field.

Under leadership of Kenneth E. Hartzler the band drilled mightily, practising to perfection its intricate drills and formations that thrilled crowds during the whole season.

Don Sprague was drum major and Jacquelyn and Whit Wilson were twirling drum majors.

Band officers were Don Sprague president, Emilio Aldecoa vice president, Margaret Bacheller secretary-treasurer and Ralph Peters, Scott Scholffman and Ernest Stephens representatives.

Symphony Orchestra . . .

With the bowing of fiddles learned, horns polished up and some of their scales forgotten the symphony orchestra started out a most successful year. Under the baton of Franklin Holsinger, the orchestra accompanied the operetta "Pinafore" to a brilliant climax.

Music week was also one of the highlights of their year of playing. The sixty-five members of the orchestra climaxed their season with a concert April 30 to a pleased audience. This group is composed of the advanced instrumentalists of Boise high, who are chosen from the ranks of the junior orchestra, which is a finishing school for the musicians who hope to some day achieve the acclaim of the music-loving public of Boise.

Boise high's "swing band" all set to swing out on a hot number

Pep Band . . .

Leading the crowd to song and the team to victory, the Pep Band completed another year of assemblies, basketball games, trips, and dinners at several associations of Boise.

Advising the band was Kenneth Hartzler, who arrived at Boise high school this year.

There were 27 member of this band and they all played with the pep and enthusiasm for which Boise high is famous.

Business men of Boise enjoyed the band's music during their noon lunches at several hotels.

The Pep Band is made up of members of the two advanced instrumental organizations and does its practicing during the advisory period.

Dance Orchestra . . .

White dinner jackets with red trimming and blue pants made up the new uniforms of the dance orchestra this year. Directing the orchestra this year was Franklin Holsinger, who showed the student body what "swingsters" they had at the several dances at which the orchestra played.

Fourteen music students made up one of the best dance orchestras the student bodies have seen in some time. All the violins, trombones, trumpets and drums did their part this year.

The reward the members got out of the orchestra was the experience in playing dance music and a lot of fun.

A Cappella Choir . . .

A cappella is the most important word used in the vocal music department. The name a cappella means without accompaniment. In order to gain membership in the choir, one must take a year of glee club, have a grade average of three and take a test which is graded on voice range, ability to stay on pitch and to sight-read music.

Choir officers were June Barker president, James Marr manager, Emily Foster librarian. The choir was directed by James L. Strachan. Membership totals 64.

Choir members wear a red floor length robe with a white emblem bearing the initials B.H.S. This year a pin was adopted, which distinguishes them from other students of the music department. One of the outstanding performances of the choir was the annual spring concert May 13. The group sang many times for local organizations and made a carcling trip at Christmas time.

Senior Girls' Glee Club . . .

Sixty girls who sang their way into the hearts of Boiseans during the past year were the members of the senior girls' glee club . . . which does not mean that they were seniors but that they had graduated from the younger junior glee club and were on their way to the goal of all high school vocalists, the a cappella choir.

During the first semester the girls were under the instruction of Mr. Donald Foltz, the second semester under Mr. James L. Strachan.

Among these sixty girls not one could be found who did not really enjoy singing with the group. They were there to sing and enjoy themselves and that is just what they did, for their own satisfaction and pleasure.

The famous a cappella choir and their new director, James Strachan line up on the front steps

Senior girls glee club, one of the best, look ready to burst into song if James Strachan would only give the word

Boys' Glee Club . . .

The Boys' glee club is the training ground where the boys of Boise High get not only encouragement but experience in the world of music. It is a stepping stone for those who are adapted to vocal work to receive further work.

The group was under the direction of Donald Foltz and Kenneth Hartzler the first and second semesters respectively.

Their annual concert was given late in the spring. The boys made up a large part of the chorus of the operetta "Pinafore" and appeared in the "Jollies" show.

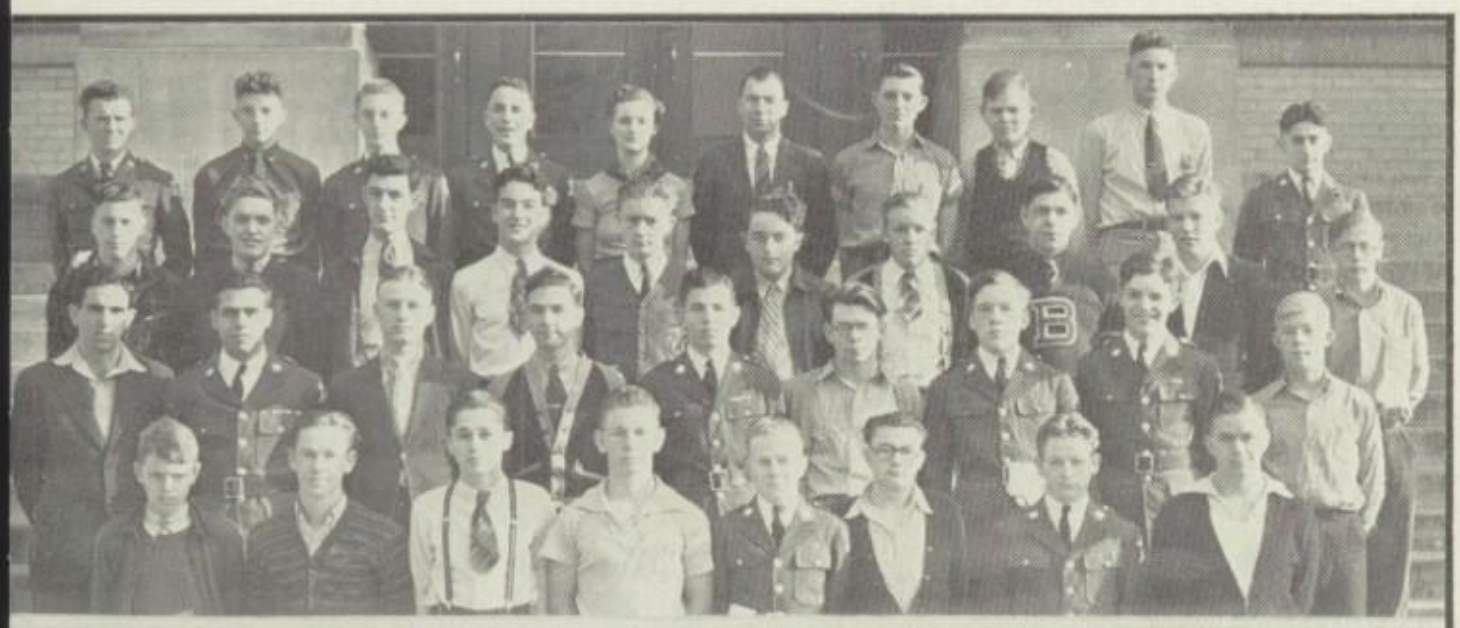
In glee club work the boys got a taste of all types of music . . . everything from the classics to light popular songs. The fellows who entered this course because they thought it was an easy one were soon to find that they were mistaken, but no one complained of hard work, because they all enjoyed it too much.

Junior Girls' Glee Club . . .

Girls . . . Girls . . . sopranos, altos and contraltos. All find their stride when they enroll in the Junior girls' glee club. This organization is to experience them for singing in the future, and nearly all average students take it their first year of singing.

Under the leadership of Donald Foltz and Kenneth Hartzler, the chorus sang in "Pinafore," the "Jollies" and presented their own concert at the end of the second semester. This group is made up of the younger girls of Boise high and is one that the music department would find hard to replace.

Music Week found not only these girls, but the entire music department singing and playing to their heart's content. At this annual event the music students of Boise high presented an evening of music for the enjoyment of the people of Boise. Most of the girls in this glee club will move up the ladder into the senior girls' glee club, and some may go into the choir.



Another group that has aspirations of someday becoming members of the choir

Some fine vocalists were found in this glee club of younger girls

Courier . . .

For instance, Bill Hart, this year editor, began planning his book la spring while he was still busy helpin Mary Critchell finish the 1937 ed tion. And Roberta Rodgers, circula tion manager, started those colossa ideas to percolating . . . those idea that again brought a banner subscrip tion year to the Courier, with almo a thousand subscriptions. And Ma garet Turner, business manager, a ready knew she would be responsibl for the financial success of the boo

Then as soon as school opened i September, arrangements for senio pictures were started, contracts wit printers, engravers and photograph ers made and the huge machinery producing a book got under way.

Courier staff members were in th advisory of Mr. D. E. Mitchell, facult advisor, so that they had a period day in which to confer on plan problems and progress.

Again the Camera club took ove a mighty burden . . . that of takin individual pictures of more than thousand sophomores and juniors, a well as faculty members and nume rous other individuals.

Serious problems had to be ove come in planning the book. The finan cial budget was tight. A place had t be found for more than 400 senior as against last year's light crop o some 275. Elimination of freshme with the opening of Boise's new junio high school, helped solve the prob lem of space limitations.

Courier . . .

How could subscriptions be held up with an enrollment reduction of 350 students? The circulation manager and her 20-odd able assistants solved that by a vigorous campaign. Business affairs were placed on a more systematic basis than ever before.

Jack Perkins was appointed editor of the 1939 Courier.

The staff labored hard to produce a book of which Boise high could be proud. And, folks, here's the result . . . this book you are holding in your hands. May it give you much enjoyment.

High Lights . . .

"The paper must come out on time."

Maybe that's a fair slogan for the staff of Boise high's newspaper, the High Lights, for the past year. If lazy reporters waited till Thursday to write stories that could have been done Tuesday, the paper went out without those stories.

If editors got a spell of spring fever once in a while, Editor Elizabeth Bracken the first semester and Editor Dick Mathison the second did the hard-boiled crack-down in a hurry and got things moving again.

However, lazy staff members were few indeed; and they didn't last long. Publishing a newspaper is a lot of hard and particular work, members discovered, So, only the really industrious ones held their positions.

Cover the news briefly, thoroughly, snappily. That's what the staff aimed to do . . . and did, most of the time.

Business managers were Louise Eide the first semester, Charles Macauley the second. Managing editors: Lois Hulser first semester, Bernice Heisner second.

Advertising was so heavy the first semester that on four occasions the staff was able to publish six-page editions instead of the conventional four.

Headlines were considerably revised the second semester. The "flush-left" style was brought back after more than seven years' lapse . . . the High Lights being probably the first newspaper in the United States to adopt it, in the fall of 1931.

Staff of the High Lights this year was more than remarkable in one respect: it was made up almost entirely of juniors. Of the 20 editorial staff positions, only three or four a semester were filled by seniors and about the same number by sophomores. Juniors dominated the rest.

"This means a staff of veterans next year and a terrific job of selecting persons for the main positions, with such a wealth of fine material," said Dwight Mitchell, advisor.

Unsung heroes are the boys who make up the paper. They prepare the type from the linotype, set up heads for all stories, prepare mats for the advertisements and do an all-around job of getting the paper together. Then the paper must be run off and sent to the folding room. All this the print shop sees to, which is a week's job in itself.

Then there's those ad chasers who make it possible for the merchants of Boise to advertise in the High Lights as well as providing an income to produce the paper. Floyd Dyer was ad manager first semester and Charles Link second semester.

Exchanges were in order again this year. Papers from all over North America were found in the stack of exchanges that came nearly every day of the week.

Dwight Mitchell, journalism teacher, is the advisor of the future newspaper men and women. In any emergency he is ready to take anyone's place who might have gotten just a little tired.

Staff appointments were made at banquets near the close of each semester. This is always an occasion at which staff members turn out full force. There were about 70 students present this year.

Dramatics . . .

Reversing an age-old custom the Dramatic club presented their annual three-act play in the fall instead of the spring and in April, the three one-acts held the spotlight.

It was the night of December 10 that the curtain rose on the mystery thriller "Seen But Not Heard," starring many high school thespians. The veteran of the boards, Miss Myna B. Hughes, who has put much life into the stage of Boise high with her coaching and directing, again scored another hit.

The officers of the past year were Mervin Edson president, Lois Hulser secretary, Bill Hart treasurer and Jim Marr sergeant-at-arms.

At their meetings the future stars of the stage and screen presented plays to each other, discussed current Broadway hits and studied the art of make-up as a means of broadening their views of the field of drama.

Boise high dramatists have always rated first class in the dramatic festivals that are held each year in Southern Idaho.

Dramatics . . .

Of all the "first nighters" Boise high enjoyed this year, the most appreciated was perhaps the three one-act plays, from thrillers to satirical comedy and then a folk story, which were each played on the well-worn boards of the auditorium stage by the dramatics department.

"The First White Woman" starred Virginia Robertson, Marjorie Stayner and Thelma McCrosky. In the drama "The Willing Spirit" Bonnie Jean Jennings, Ralph Joslyn and Roberta Rodgers held the spotlight. The last play, "Uncle Jimmy," featured Jerry Conrow in the title role.

Miss Myna Brunton Hughes and her staff of assistants, Joyce Rowell, Margery Ann Brunger, Wanda McDonough and Marjorie Stayner, coached the dramatists in their work with marked success.

"Seen But Not Heard" carried the actors and actresses to further fame and established Jerry Conrow as a star of Boise high's little theatre.

The dramatics department also sponsored the senior class play, "Growing Pains," too late in the spring for the particulars to be recorded here.

Another scene from "The First White Woman" . . . that corpse was "Seen But Not Heard" from the play of the same name . . . family troubles in the tenement room of "The Willing Spirit" . . . neighborhood gossip under the cherry tree and more of "Uncle Jimmy"

Latin Club . . .

Latin students who worried through the year with the first-year Latin or translating Ceaser got some enjoyment out of the course by joining the Latin club. Roman celebrations and games were reported on during the year.

Officers for the club were Heber Bakes and Barbara Cornell as counsels; Beth Fails secretary and Annette Stewart treasurer. Because of the fact that Miss Hogarth, advisor, spent her summer traveling in Europe, the members learned a good deal about other foreign countries.

The club last year purchased slides of picturesque scenes and things of interest which were greatly enjoyed by the students of this past year.

French Club . . .

For a better understanding of the country of France and the French language, second year French students joined Le Cercle Francoais, better known as the French club.

Two meetings were held each month, one social affair where refreshments were served, and one business meeting. This year Miss Mary Ann Hogarth was asked to speak at one of the meetings and she gave a vivid account of her stay in France. Miss Emma Simmons was advisor. Officers: Helen Friedline president, Helen Caine vice president and Elizabeth Walker secretary.

Last year the club purchased five "French by Sound" books with records to help students taking French with pronunciation, understanding and reading of the language.

Spanish Club . . .

Pan-American day was celebrated by the Spanish club the past year with an assembly for the entire student body. Verna Mae Dunning was the general chairman of this interesting affair, while members of the club took part in the program. At Christmas time the club gave a party where traditional Spanish games were played and Spanish food was served.

Maxine Craven was the head of this club assisted by Nancy Robinson, Katie Lou Collins and Rosalie Gray. Miss Valora Blackburn was the adviser.

At their meetings the club studied modern Spain very completely, as they were anxious to know all about the country because of the recent trouble there.

History Club . . .

"Come to the History club and learn about your fellow men."

This was the invitation given to many history students last fall. Miss Deborah Davis was advisor and also head of the history department.

First semester officers were Kathleen Ash president, Jennie Coppock vice president, Carol Thompson secretary. Second semester officers were, in the same order, Eleanor Ray, Dorothy Barbour and Margaret Guthmann.

The club sponsored an international banquet on Pan-American day, April 14, and also aided a project in connection with the local Americanization school.

Quill and Scroll . . .

The highest honor that a high school journalist can receive is to be taken into the National Quill and Scroll society. To be eligible one must be in the upper third of his class, be an upperclassman, and be outstanding in the journalistic field.

If the student passes these requirements he is recommended by Dwight Mitchell, journalism advisor, to the national secretary in Chicago, along with samples of his work. Then, if he passes, he is sent his pin and membership certificate and Quill and Scroll magazine every two months.

Forum Club . . .

Back in the days when our grandfathers used to gather around the wood stove in the country grocery store, they called it the "Spit an' Argy Club." But in Boise high it is known as the Forum club and it's for all students who like to discuss and exchange ideas. Lois Peterson was president, Luella Robison vice president, Ruthye Mielecke secretary and Jack Robertson treasurer.

The club followed a tradition established some time back when it sponsored a mock trial to give members a chance to practice their abilities in arguing and thinking on their feet, and also to learn some of the details of court procedure. This trial was in the Ada county court room and Judge C. F. Koelsch presided. Mr. Arthur Hays was the advisor.

Library Staff . . .

Students of Boise high school find an atmosphere of quiet and education when they step across the threshold of the school library. The three rooms which house the library offer reference material of every type to those who must study and good fiction for those who seek entertainment.

Many periodicals are found on its shelves and racks and a selection of the best newspapers. All this material is kept available for student use by the staff of 16 assistants who work under the supervision of Miss Helen Miller, school librarian.

Biggest addition to the library this year was a new card catalogue as an extension of the old one. Many new books, both fiction and non-fiction, were added to the shelves.

Pen and Blotter . . .

Composed of students interested in creative and picture writings with adjectives and adverbs, the Pen and Blotter club has had a very interesting and busy year.

The biggest single achievement was the production of a book containing the work of members of the club. Wooden rings bearing the initials of the club were made and worn by all members. Business and social meetings alternated throughout the year. Prominent Boise writers were featured as guest speakers.

Scarlet Skirts . . .

With Ginger Foy as their lucky papoose, the Scarlet Skirts began the school year by showing much pep at the football games. The girls chose Virginia Rhea as their president, assisted by Pauline Baxter and Miss Helen Moore, faculty advisor.

The girls decorated the goal posts for the football games and provided a stunt at the Boise-Nampa game. They organized and led a parade from the school to the Public School field before the Boise-Idaho Falls tilt. The Scarlet Skirts had their first big dance February 21, in the new gymnasium, which was transformed into an Indian village.

Home Economics . . .

One of the outstanding clubs in high school is the Home Economics club, which has made itself prominent in many activities.

One of the high lights of the year was the style show sponsored by the organization, which took place March 2. Miss Ina Ranson, a McCall stylist from New York, was the guest in charge of the program. A large number of girls turned out to learn the new spring fashions and colors.

The head cooks and seamstresses of the club who took charge of the meetings were Helen Peck president, Marie Cox vice president and Miss Carol Paine faculty advisor.

Hinton, Redington, Weisshaupt, Heisner, Edwards, Ellis, Rhoades, Shaw, Bloomstrand, Kruse

Bloom, Mathews, Collister, Peck, Miss Paine, advisor; Cox, Chapman, Cernich, Fleming

Art Club . . .

The Art club meets twice a month and has numerous projects. Perhaps the most outstanding event of the past year was the assembly given last fall entitled "Artists and Models Junior," which introduced new talent to the audience. Art students also help with virtually every production of the high school dramatics department.

April Fool's day gave the Art club a chance to put on an entertaining matinee all-school dance.

Art club officers this year were Rachel Branson president, Jeanne Evans vice president and Betty Patterson secretary. Miss Mary Hollingshead was the advisor.

Ad Club . . .

Through the merchants of Boise, members of the Ad club learned the value of a dollar when it is spread over a newspaper page in the form of an advertisement and they also learned something of the life of an advertising man.

Best season in years . . . that's what the High Lights business department says about its advertising this year. This group of 20 hustlers was responsible for making the High Lights possible, because, if you don't have ads you don't pay expense, and so you don't have a paper. Officers: First semester, C. Science Club . . .

Not content with the regular science courses in Boise high, certain students formed a Science club in which they glimpsed at phases of science not in the regular curriculum.

A ten-inch telescope, started last year by Arthur Mink for the Science club, was finished this year. This telescope will be a benefit to not only the club but the entire student body.

The club is under the direction of Harry Mitchell, science teacher. The officers for the first semester were David Shoemaker president, Robert Thode vice president and Robert Monk secretary. Second semester officers included David Shoemaker again president, Robert Monk vice president and Paul Sandmeyer secretary.

Radio Club . . .

Talking with friends in Japan, China, Australia, South Africa and Europe is no hard task for the members of the Radio club of Boise high school. Nearly every member of the group has made a set of his own and converses by wireless with friends in the far corners of the globe.

Under the supervision of Howard Paul, advisor for the organization, the boys have built a large transmitter. This is in the radio room on the third floor of the industrial arts building. Its license is W7YA.

Future Farmers . . .

There's a group of 65 boys in Boise high who figure that the best kind of life is the life on the farm and that it's more fun to raise pigs, wheat, apples and sheep than to make your living any other way.

They are the Future Farmers of America and Mr. John Bauer, agriculture teacher, is advisor. What do these boys of the F.A.A. do? Well, each one has his own project, raising livestock or berries or something. Officers for the year were Bill Ball president, Jay Shawver vice president, George Miller second vice president, Bob Ball third vice president, Charles Schlerf secretary, Lyle Christensen treasurer, and Jake Leppert reporter.

Future Craftsmen . . .

Future Craftsmen of America is a new club in Boise high school, having just finished its second year. It is made up of students in printing, vocational auto mechanics and manual training. More than 100 boys were members this year. Faculty advisors were Mr. W. O. Lemon, Mr. H. L. Straight, Mr. L. K. Perkins and Mr. Guy O. Fry. Purpose of this organization is to foster pride in craftsmanship and to help the members fit themselves for their prospective vocations.

Officers were: First semester, Floyd Dyer president, Aden Moore vice president, Jack Robertson treasurer; second semester, Aden Moore president, Dave Haggard vice president, Eddie Wellman secretary and Albert Taylor treasurer.

Camera Club . . .

"Wish I'd worn a necktie." "H-m, paint's all on straight; my hair's in an awful mess; think I should have waited till tomorrow for this picture but they told me it was now or never, so here goes."

Such are some of the mumblings of Boise high school students as they submit to the ordeal of having their pictures taken for the Courier by members of the Camera club. And the club got just about every sophomore and junior in school.

Ski Club . . .

Boise high students have been skiing since the Indians controlled Idaho, but it took a flock of dudes from the social centers of Europe to come out to Sun Valley and really make the public here realize that a little slab of wood can be a source of amusement and sport as well as a means of transportation.

And so the Boise high boys organized a Ski club this year. Under leadership of Jack Griffin as president, these winter sportsmen have really been doing things on skis. They have entered practically every ski tournament in southwest Idaho this winter, which meant they had to qualify against stiff opposition. Bob Day was vice president and Bernard Baker secretary.

S. M. S. . . .

Daggers gleam fitfully in the dull gloom of the stage. Bright colors shimmer and shift as the dancing chorus brings the "Jollies" to a climax.

It's the S.M.S. manipulating the lights back-stage. It is Boise high's own club which is responsible for doing the special lighting and stage work at all affairs in the auditorium or gymnasium. These boys, under direction of Advisor Bert Schenberger, are never seen by the audience but their work is absolutely indispensable and they have done their stuff scores of times during the year. Officers for the year were Clinton Timmel president, Eddie Wellman vice president and Gerald Burgess secretary-treasurer.

Commercial Club . . .

Many commercial students of Boise high are planning for business careers. Consequently the the organization of a Commercial club this year under sponsorship of Miss E. P. Watson and Mr. C. T. Edlefsen, instructors, was a step that created greater interest among them.

Club members visited various Boise commercial institutions and gained valuable insight from addresses and lectures by informed speakers at their bi-weekly meetings.

Eva Jacobs was president, Verna Dickman vice president and Verna Mae Dunning secretary-treasurer. Program chairman was Erma Tucker; her assistant, Margaret Pinneo. Refreshment committee heads were Lillyan Jensen and Lucille Rice.

R. O. T. C. . . .

Boise's real Braves, the R.O.T.C., who go marching around with Indian head insignia on their shoulders, have just finished a successful year under the leadership of Capt. John H. Pitzer, West Point graduate. He was assisted by Sergeant F. E. Chase.

The corps was pleasantly startled at the beginning of the year to find that the new captain intended to do away with the white Webb belts used in former years. These were replaced by leather belts, as formerly used.

Other important changes were the disbanding of the field service platoon, due to lack of uniforms; the rearranging of the three-squad platoons into two squads; the new method of selecting the Bonneville Rifles, honorary unit. These will be selected, not from the best men of the outfit but from the best-drilled platoon.

The annual Kid party was held in February. It was supervised by Cadet Major McCutcheon.

Five remaining Corps Grenadiers, honorary organization, elected ten new members at the end of the first semester. The new ones are Charles Lenfest, Joe Farley, Charles Crowe, Bud Tompkins, Bob Wood, Arthur Mink, John Gamble, George Ellis, Don Howard, and Jerry Conrow. The five remaining members were Ted McCutcheon, Dick Olson, Bert Varian, William Von Alven and Milton Christiansen.

R. O. T. C. . . .

Red and white fourragere were awarded to former members of the Bonneville Rifles and Field Service platoons.

New sabers were obtained, as the old ones dated into Civil War history. Also new rifle racks and a target range were promised before the end of the school year.

Altogether the corps was well equipped when Governor's Day rolled around on May 29. It was held on the polo field in the afternoon. To the best drilled company a trophy was given by Mr. J. L. Driscoll, on which was engraved the name of the captain of the winning company.

The Kiwanis club awarded a plaque similar to the football plaque to the cadet who did the most for the corps. This is decided by a vote of the corps. This cadet also receives a medal.

Keith Farley gave a medal to be given to the commander of the best platoon in drill. To each member of this platoon a medal was given by American Legion and National Guard association.

The Reserve Officers chapter of Boise awarded three individual medals. One to the best cadet in Military Discipline, selected from records. One to best in Military Science and Tactics, selected by competitive examination, and best in Manual of Arms, selected by competition.

Federal inspection was held in conjunction with Governor's Day, when Capt. P. T. Wolfe inspected the corps.

The day after this the annual Military Banquet and Ball was held. Ted McCutcheon was chairman. In May the corps ushered at the Music Week Festival.

Altogether the corps upheld their reputation as an outstanding unit. With many worthy additions, they are building for a better corps in the future.

The annual whitewashing of the "B" on Tablerock by the new members of this club was the starting of a successful season.

The schedule of the club's year was as follows:

December 7—The annual banquet for the pigskin carriers.

December 15—Annual pay assembly for entire student body; Savino Uberuaga recognized as the most valuable Brave on the football team.

January 8—"B" Club dance, with Virginia Rhea the queen of the 1938 "B" Club. The theme of the dance was "football."

January 26—The Braves scheduled a basketball battle between the Nampa faculty team and the Boise high teachers.

March 5—This was a climax to a season of great accomplishments. The "Smokeless Smoker" was presented in the old gym, with boxing, wrestling, and exhibitions by the members of the club. A dance followed.

Wakantanka, the spirit that looks after all Braves, has brought victories and happiness to Boise high's teams that are made up of "B" Club members, and so ended another year of sport for Boise high.

Football . . .

Big Ten Football Champions! The Braves under Coaches Darwin Burgher and Ed Hoshaw scored eight victories as against one tie during the past season.

Schools that fell before the Boise onslaught were LaGrande, Filer, Twin Falls, Caldwell, Idaho Falls, Emmett, Vale and Nampa. The tie game was played with Pocatello.

The big game of the season was the Boise-Nampa battle on Thanksgiving day, which resulted in a 19-to-6 victory for the red and white clad warriors.

Four Braves: Uberuaga, Mathison, Clayville and Whitlock received berths on the mythical all-state team.

In their nine games the team chalked up 211 points as against 36 for their opponents.

"Fight 'em, Boise, fight 'em," the crowd would roar . . . and that is what the Braves did, bringing home the "bacon," like all the rest of the athletic teams of B.H.S. were soon to do.

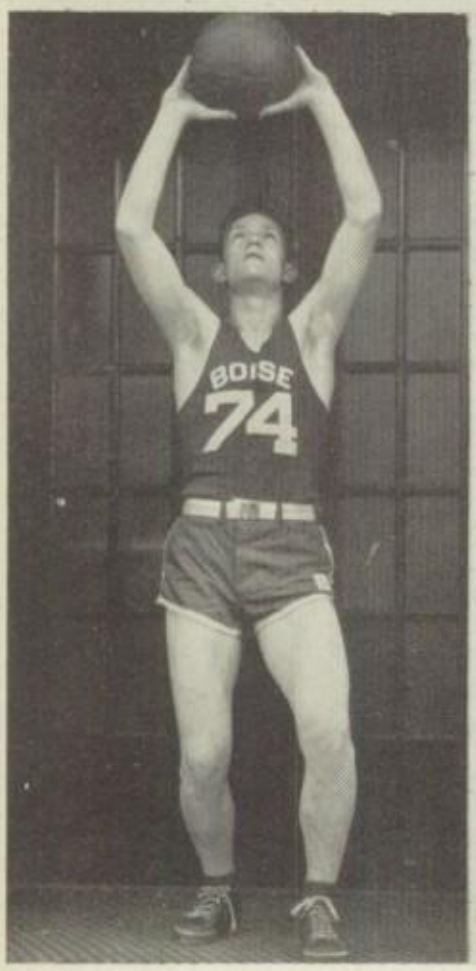
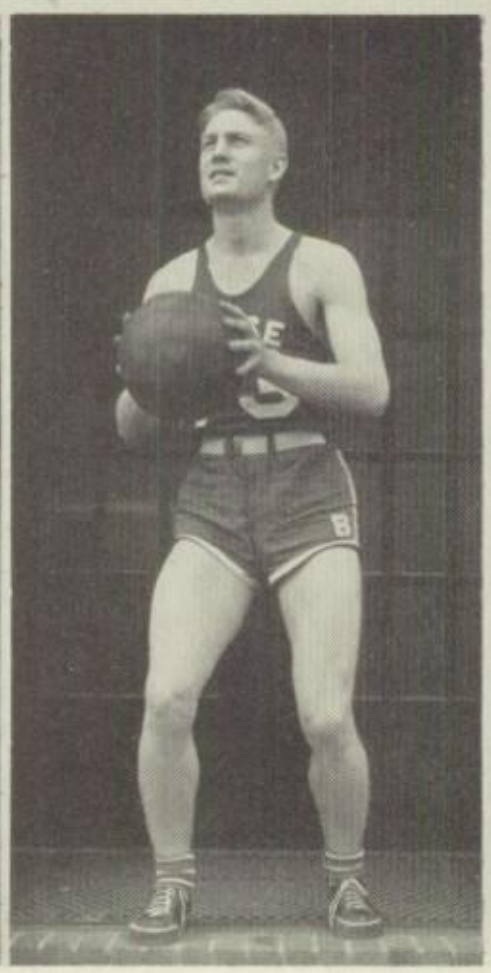
Basketball . . .

State Champions! After an absence of 14 years the state basketball championship was finally brought back to Boise by as brilliant a team as ever romped the maple court for Boise high.

During the entire season the Braves chalked up 23 victories as against two defeats. Their two losses came at the hands of the Idaho Falls and Baker, Oregon, teams. The Braves got revenge for one of these setbacks when they won a return game from the Tigers at Idaho Falls. Losing to Baker by a two-point margin on the Bulldogs' home floor was also no disgrace, as the Baker team went on to win the Oregon championship.

In their 25 games the Braves scored a total of 950 points while they held their opponents to 613 points. Leading the scorers this year was Darrell Parente, flashy junior forward, with 246 points to his credit. Following Parente was Captain Don Galbreaith with a total of 187 points.





The Braves opened their season with a thrilling one-point victory over the strong Pocatello Indians on the home floor. In their second game of the season the Braves tasted one of their two defeats when they lost to Idaho Falls.

Other teams that fell before the onslaught of the Braves were Nampa, Caldwell, Payette, Weiser, Vale, Emmett, Mountain Home, Burley and Sandpoint.

The state tournament was held in Boise on March 17, 18 and 19. Boise defeated the Moscow Bears 38 to 30 to win the championship. Boise took an early lead and held it throughout the game. The Braves defeated Sandpoint in their first game of the tournament by a 50 to 33 score. They then advanced to the championship round with a 49 to 24 victory over Emmett.

Two of the members of the team, Don Galbreaith and Darrell Parente, were chosen on the all-state team, while Vern McGowan was placed on the second team. Galbreaith was also chosen as captain.

The team was coached by Darwin K. Burgher, who was greatly responsible for its fine record.

Do-Nut League . . .

The annual Do-nut league basketball championship was won this year by Darrell Parente's Pink Pantywaists. The pantywaists copped the do-nuts by defeating Harland Storey's Aces by a 24 to 17 score, after a real battle.

Members of the winning team were Darrell Parente, Stan Jones, Leonard Robinson, Fermin Sabala, Wayne E. Peterson, Joe Goechochea and Henry Schweizer.

The tournament was conducted on a double elimination system, with all the games being played in the new gym. There were 3 teams entered in the league with about 225 boys taking part in the play. This league made it possible for all boys in school to play basketball.

Frosh-Soph Basketball . . .

Finishing a brilliant season with 25 wins out of 27 games is a record of which to be proud. Such was the final count of the frosh-soph basketball season.

With Bill Sproat as high point man and Bob Sherman as runner-up, the team made a fine showing. Their games were played as "curtain raisers" before all varsity games.

This is the training ground for future state champions, which is the goal of every Boise high basketball team.

The quintet was coached by Edward Hoshaw, who had much to do with that kind of basketball and sportsmanship which was displayed on the floor of the new gymnasium.

Something new for Boise high sport fans . . . Capt. Pitzer's boxing squad

Hoy, Perkins, Bowers, Thomas and Guthman, matmen for B.H.S., and their coach, Lester Moody

Boxing . . .

The first boxing team in Boise high was started the past year by Captain John Pitzer. Matches were promoted by Bob Green, captain of the squad. Dick Olson was manager and Captain John Pitzer advisor.

Matches were arranged with Kimberly, New Plymouth and Nampa. Two matches were tied and two were lost.

Seven boys earned letters this year.

At the beginning of the school year there was no equipment at the high school. As a result the boys trained at the Y.M.C.A. There their coach was Kenneth Nill.

Wrestling . . .

Boise high is proud of her "grunt and groan artists," even though they are comparatively new to most of the students of the school.

Wrestling is fast becoming one of the top-ranking sports in the athletic department. Under the coaching of Lester Moody all the boys interested in this sport trained and got themselves into championship form. For the past three years the wrestling teams of Boise high have been the leaders in their division.

Matches were held with schools from southwestern Idaho, and the Braves always managed to come out on top. As a sport for developing skill and physical fitness, wrestling is foremost.

Track . . .

Track comes too late in the season for the results to be recorded in the Courier. But as the book went into final stages of completion, a huge squad of Boise high school athletes was toiling diligently at Public School field with the aim of surpassing last year's record, when the Braves took third place in the state meet, led by Fermin Sabala's fine achievement of taking first place in the pole vault.

Due to the awkward geography of the state and other difficulties, there was no state meet scheduled for this year, but just the same some fine meets were scheduled and the Boise men went to work with a will as soon as the close of the basketball season and weather permitted.

Lettermen returning were Charles Johnson pole vault, Vern McGowan hurdles, Howard Clayville weights, Bob Turner and John Thomas half mile, Dean Fitzwater and Arthur Blake sprints, Wayne Peterson, Henry Schweizer 440, and Lester Allen mile.

Other promising boys included Art Racine and Walter Kerley sprints, Jimmie Thrailkill high jump, Angie Madarieta high jump and hurdles, Vern Darling and Frank Martin weights,

Track . . .

Melvin Osborn hurdles, Bob Sherman hurdles and pole vault, Jack Dana 440, and Eddie Wellman pole vault.

The Braves were handicapped by a late start, said Edward Hoshaw and Howard Paul, coaches, as many other schools started the season several weeks before the Boise men got under way. The Braves were delayed by the fact that the state basketball tournament was held here.

Opening the competition, the Boise lads held an inter-class meet April 14 and 15. Inter-scholastic competition started with a triangular meet here with Nampa and Caldwell April 23. Boise was privileged in being able to have most meets at home, the sub-district meet coming on April 30 and the district meet May 7. Last on the season's schedule was the inter-district meet, including Southwest Idaho and south-central Idaho schools in competition here May 14.

Braves were invited to the Idaho Southern university relays at Pocatello, but as the Courier went to press it had not been determined whether or not they would be able to enter this event.

These sophomore boys "eat and sleep" tennis

Tennis . . .

Headed by one letterman from last year's squad, Boise high's tennis players set out this spring to take their third consecutive state championship.

Mr. Cecil Pollard, tennis coach, said his racquet men this year were mostly sophomore and junior boys. They were Donald Duncan, Bill Sproat, Bud Blaine, Orie Dudley, Fred Mann, Jimmy Charrier, Vern Taylor, Gene Frazier, Porter Seibert, Danny Archabal and Tom Barber.

Golf . . .

Boise high school students contributed their share to the prosperity of local golf links during the past year, a fair number of them organizing a team for competition with neighboring schools.

Let March winds blow as they will, and what if there are April showers? Golf addicts get something in their blood that makes them forget weather as they poise for a mighty drive across the lake or over the hill, or as they strain every nerve and tap the ball for that 10-foot putt.

Girls' Athletic Association . . .

Girls turned out early in September for sports under Miss Dorothy Lenfest, new physical education teacher. President of the Girls' Athletic Association was Mildred McDowell. She was assisted in the year's work by Dorothy Garrett vice president, Betty Slater secretary-treasurer and the executive board, made up of managers of various sports.

Four major sports were included in the G.A.A. program for the year. They were speedball, volleyball, basketball and baseball. Feminine football was introduced by Miss Lenfest in speedball, a new sport to Boise high school girls. Ardis Wilson was manager.

Volleyball, an early winter sport, was managed by Conchita Arostegui. January found the girls brushing up on basketball in preparation for the tournament which was held in February. Margaret Madarieta was manager. Baseball, managed by Elsie Henke, completed the major sports program.

Many interesting minor sports completed activities for the year. These included tennis, tumbling, table tennis, swimming, archery, golf, spring tennis, spring track, bowling and miscellaneous sports.

The Girls' Athletic Association gave a banquet and sponsored three play-days. A tennis day under the chairmanship of Jean Beck was held October 23 at Julia Davis park. Rosemary Reed, Katherine Werry and Valerie Delana won tennis letters this year.

Miss Lenfest emphasized playing, and not winning, one of the reasons so many Boise high girls took a healthy interest in physical education. Each class chose its own teams for each sport and inter-class play was held. All interested girls were given a chance to perform at some time.

Girls' Athletic Association . . .

On February 14 girls from all parts of southwestern Idaho participated in a play-day sponsored by the G.A.A. Eight Boise girls acted as captains of the eight teams. The junior high school play-day was given for girls in the ninth grade who will attend Boise high school next year. This was held in the spring.

The annual banquet in May was the final project of the year. Dorothy Garrett was chairman. The program included farewell speeches from the officers, who thus closed another successful year for the Girls' Athletic Association.

No "slackers" are to be found here. Everyone working and playing and enjoying themselves. Because of the fact that the girls have no outside facilities, they make use of the new gym. However, this makes no difference with their playing, as indicated by the scores of the competitive games. No inter-town competition is played by the G.A.A.

Girls may join the G.A.A. by gaining points by participating in athletic events. These include basketball, speedball, volleyball, baseball, tennis, hiking, swimming and numerous other sports.

Girls' Athletic Association . . .

Experience is found in the games which the various teams play. Captains for these teams are picked before each respective season opens.

This organization does, perhaps, help all the feminine sportsters in Boise high. Girls who otherwise would not be able to compete among themselves, thereby get essential exercise, helping to make a more varied program in their school life. Knowledge of the several minor sports help them in future times. Also one of the most important factors in life is taught, that of sportsmanship, which is needed wherever one goes.

Girls' track was enjoyed by many girls, who went out for the broad jump, high jump, hop, skip and jump. For running exercises the fifty-yard dash, hurdles and relay races were run. Weight lifters used the shot put and baseball and basketball artists threw their respective balls for accuracy.

And so the girls of Boise high complete another year, finally convincing the school that they are learning to become good athletes and are getting a good time out of the sports that they enjoy.

Honor Girls . . .

Honor Girl! This coveted title was given this year to 33 girls by the girls of Boise high school. Departure from the traditional number, 32, was necessitated by a tie.

Biggest secret of the year was revealed on May 7 at the Honor Girl dance, when Virginia Rhea was crowned May Queen and Bonnie Jean Jennings as maid of honor. Identity of the two girls was kept secret from the time of the election until more than a month later by three sophomore girls, Nancy Robinson, Patty Lou McIntyre and Hiroko Shintani.

Werner Stern was selected as most popular boy and Don Galbreaith as runner-up.

Lucille Laubaugh was chairman of the Honor Girl dance, and the girls acted as her committee. Co-chairmen of the annual Honor Girl breakfast were June Barker and Virginia Robertson.

Honor girls included the following juniors and seniors: Carmen Aldecoa, Helen Marr Archibald, Kathleen Ash, Ann Barber, Dorothy Barbour, June Barker, Jane Barrett, Pauline Baxter, Elizabeth Bracken, Olive Jane Brigham, Ruth Ann Cahoon, Helen Caine, Dorothy Coon, Valerie Delana, Norma Farmer, Elinore Finch, Emily Foster, Marcia Gwinn, Judith Hallstrom, Bonnie Jean Jennings, Lucille Laubaugh, Margaret Madarieta, Lois Malnati, Ruthye Mielecke, Bernice Perry, Lois Peterson, Alice Power, Virginia Rhea, Virginia Robertson, Roberta Rodgers, Anne Winstead, Betty Jane Worley and Elizabeth Yriondo.

Monitors . . .

"Keep your property locked up in your lockers." That's good advice for Boise high students but not always practicable. For instance, students must hang their coats and wraps in the cloakrooms, especially during bad weather. To protect property during school hours the school has a monitor system.

At certain places in all halls at all periods of the day students are stationed as monitors to supervise traffic. Every pupil who enters a cloakroom or who goes to his locker must sign a sheet at the monitor's desk. Thus a complete check is made of students outside of study hall or classes. Students who volunteer for this service receive a half credit a semester.

Sponsors . . .

Every period of the school day in every class, teachers take attendance records and record them on slips. These records must be checked constantly under supervision of Miss Clara Otness, dean of girls. There are also numerous errands that the office force has not time to take care of.

This work is entrusted to girl student orderlies, of whom there are from five to ten each period of the day. This year for the first time these efficient wide-awake girls receive credit for their work. When students are absent they telephone the homes to learn the reason. They take care of a huge amount of the business side of school life.
